MANILA SURRENDER CONFERENCE IS DELAYED AT REQUEST OF JAPANESE

Russia Orders Surrender in Manchuria

By ED. L. CAMPBELL

LONDON, Friday, Aug. 17 (AP) —

Russians today gave the Japanese

Wangtung army in Manchuria until noon Monday to capitulate

As soon as the Japanese troops surrendering their arms, Soviet troops will discontinue war operations. Marshal Alexander M. Vassky told Kwantung headquarters

a broadcast order, the Moscow report.

A Soviet war communique last said counterattacks had been launched and the Russians had captured the prize communications lines of Wangtung, Kwantung and Manchuria. In addition, the broadcast bulletin said, Soviet troops received an enemy attempt to recapture the Korean port city of Selsin.

Vassilovsky, the radio said, reported that the Japanese did not "mention a word about capitulation" in request to the Soviets to stop fighting.

The Soviet commander was quoted as saying that he allowed until Monday to surrender in order to communicate with all of his troops.

Three hours later, the Japanese army agency quoted a message from the Kwantung commander to Allied forces saying that the Japanese would send "small-type aircraft" over the Manchurian front between 10 a. m. and 7 p. m.

to effect swift transmission of the order to cease all military activities and to surrender all arms." Domei's dispatch was recorded by

AP.

The commander of the Kwantung army desires that there will be no misunderstanding on the part of the Allies regarding the mission of the aircraft," Domei quoted the Swiss radio said the commander of the Kwantung army had urged the Russians that Japanese troops have ceased firing.

The Soviet communique said the troops of Marshal K. A. Meretsky beat down a counterattack and captured Wangtung, twenty-five miles from the northern border of the area and on a rail line 110 miles from Selsin.

Dean Acheson Will Succeed Grew As U. S. Undersecretary of State

Truman Accepts Resigna- tion of Veteran Diplomat

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 (AP) —

Joseph Clark Grew, veteran diplomat and author of much of the American policy which preceded the Japanese surrender, resigned today

as undersecretary of state.

President Truman, accepting the resignation, announced the appointment of Dean G. Acheson, an assistant secretary of state, to succeed

to the number two job in the State department.

The change is the first major turnover in the department since

Byrnes became secretary of state.

Acheson will take up his new duties some time next week. He is a federal official of long service in economic and international affairs

with close ties to Congress.

The naming of Acheson may prelude a far-reaching shakeup in the United States Foreign Service.

He is not a career diplomat by profession, but a lawyer, and he is moving into a spot normally held by a career diplomat.

Acheson, a native of Middletown,

Conn., is a graduate of Groton school and of Yale university with a degree from Harvard. He became undersecretary of the treasury in 1933 but resigned after a few months. He did not join the State department until 1942 when he was appointed assistant secretary in charge of economic affairs.

Grew, at 65, has seen diplomatic service in many countries of the world from the time when, following his graduation from Groton school and Harvard university, he became a clerk in the American consulate in Cairo in 1904. For nine years,

1903-1912, he was envoy to Tokyo.

He returned to the State department in June, 1942, and after a period of handling Far Eastern af-airs he became undersecretary last December.

In his letter of resignation, Grew said that he had accepted the appointment as undersecretary for the duration of the war and now requested that his resignation which was submitted when Mr. Truman became president in April be accepted.

Peace Machinery

By JOHN A. PARRIS

LONDON, Aug. 16 (AP) — The considered a proposal to establish an international secretariat to create the technical machinery for keeping world peace.

The proposal was made today at the opening session of the commission's Executive committee by secretary, Gladwyn Jebb, of the British foreign office.

Representatives of Australia, Brazil, Canada, Chile, China, Czecho-

A Natural Thought

It was in response to a reporter's remark that the Japanese radio had indicated there would be "revenge in the future" that Mr. Truman asserted he thought Japan would have no chance at it. It's natural for any defeated people to think of revenge, he said.

The president didn't link his ob-the three huge plants working on them still were operating.

Congress, he hoped, would go along with plans to use atomic force in the long run for the benefit of the world instead of for destruction.

In the middle of the celebra-prayers were needed.

Mr. Truman stood behind his desk

under a bombardment of questions and batted back the answers.

The exchanges brought out such information as this:

Japs in China Accept Terms, Reports State

Commander of Nip Forces Is Said To Have Sent Word to Chiang

By SPENCER MOOSA

CHUNGKING, Friday, Aug. 17 (AP) —

Reliable reports said today that the commander of all Japanese forces in China had sent word to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek accepting Chiang's terms for arranging the surrender of the enemy.

At the same time it was learned on good authority that United States Ambassador Patrick J. Hurley was prepared to fly to Yenan in an attempt to induce Communist

Leader Mao Tse-tung to come to Chungking and discuss settlement of differences between the Communist and the Central government which hold the threat of civil war.

There was good reason to believe that the terms of the Sino-Russian treaty, when disclosed, will have an important bearing on China's internal problems. Censorship has prevented publication of the terms

here.

As for ending the fighting with the Japanese, Lt. Gen. Yasutsugu

Owamura was said to have agreed to send a representative to Yushan in Northeastern Kiangsi province to take orders from Gen. Ho Ying-

Chin, the Chinese field commander.

U. S. AAF Will Aid Chinese

Ho is expected to insist that Oku-mura instruct his troops to surrender only to duly accredited Allied representatives, thus preventing them from turning over their arms

or themselves to Chinese Communists.

The acceptance report came on the heels of a disclosure by American commanders in China that unofficial reports said clashes had already occurred between

Chiang's forces and the Communists

Postwar Era Looms Brightly Here

CONTEMPLATION of the problems of reconstruction discloses that Cumberlanders have occasion to rejoice that these are comparatively minor for this community as gauged by those of most places where essential war production was carried on to any extent. Save for a natural readjustment in a number of small business concerns, this city will be able to sail through the reconstruction period almost unchanged.

Many another community is having its readjustment troubles and they are crowding upon them now in a sort of avalanche. Over at Morgantown, W. Va. for example, the $90,000,000 Morgantown Ordnance Works originally planned by the du Ponts as a unit to manufacture raw material for nylon but diverted on government orders to make munitions of war, has been ordered to cease all production and construction work. Morgantown people are worried over the future of the big plant, now government-owned, as other than a war fatality.

The massive West Virginia Ordnance Works at Point Pleasant, that state, has suddenly halted its TNT production under orders to suspend and to place the plant in shape for possible sale. It was another $90,000,000 project.

Members of the Meade committee of the federal Senate have paid a flying visit to Charleston, W. Va., to survey postwar operational possibilities at two large Kanawha valley plants—the naval ordnance plant in the capital city and the synthetic rubber plant at Institute.

In these three West Virginia cities as well as in numerous others throughout the land, these suspensions and cancellations of enormous war material contracts mean severe blows, jolting their economy enormously.

But here in Cumberland, there will be no such sudden changes. The huge Celanese plant, while it produced much in the way of war material, will go on producing textiles for peacetime as busily as it produced them for war. The big Kelly-Springfield plant was converted with rare foresight many months ago from the production of shells to that of synthetic rubber tires, and that production will continue for years to come in the need with continuing great possibilities in other use of synthetic rubbers in the face of a restored natural rubber production. The railroads, extremely busy here during the wartime period, will continue equally busy for a long time to come.

Thus, in its major industries, Cumberland will fare well in this sudden transition period; and not only will it go through it safely and with a gratifying minima of disruption, but it will also at the same time enter upon a new period of industrial development. This will be immediately enhanced by the resumption of work on the Savage River dam and the inception of long-planned flood control and water works expansion. All in all, the postwar era looms brightly for this community.

Wainwright and Other Prisoners of War

GRATIFYING, indeed, is the word which describes the wires that Gen. MacArthur has announced plans for the speedy release of Lt. Gen. Jonathan Wainwright, hero of Corregidor, and other American prisoners of war.

Army spokesmen at Washington say that Wainwright, who took over the final defense of the Philippines in 1942 after Gen. MacArthur was ordered to Australia, was last reported a prisoner at Hoten camp in the Miken area of Manchuria. He was taken there last October from Formosa.

With Gen. Wainwright are eighteen generals, all captured in the Philippines; 113 colonels and a number of army and navy enlisted men.

The Japanese hold a total of at least 16,668 Americans, including 13,300 military personnel and 3,368 civilians. Most of the military prisoners have been held in Japan while the civilian internees have been spread in camps through the homeland and in China.

It is an obvious duty to see that these prisoners of war obtain their release as speedily as possible, and more particularly is interest held in the fate of heroic Gen. Wainwright and his associated officers. It is the fervent hope of all Americans that they will be found safe and well. If they are not, somebody should pay for it.

The surrender terms sent to Japan by President Truman required the Japanese to transfer the American and Allied prisoners to "places of safety," as directed, where they can quickly be placed aboard Allied transports.

This action is tops in those which must be taken in connection with the Japanese surrender.

Japanese Treachery Demands Watchfulness

THE TOUGH JOB of straightening out the barbaric Japanese under Allied control is further impressed by the Japanese broadcasts vaguely implying that Nippon is already looking to the rebuilding of its armed might and regaining its lost empire. It is well that the United States government officials are giving close attention to these intimations.

Washington says diplomatic and military authorities don't like the tone of two Tokyo spokesmen in particular, and it might be added that the American public doesn't like it, either.

Telling Japanese troops of surrender, the chief of the Japan Broadcasting Corporation's overseas bureau, Jussio Ayo, declared that "we have lost—but this is only temporary," adding that "Japan's mistake was lack of material strength and scientific knowledge and equipment. This mistake we must amend."

Coupled with that is a Japanese language broadcast to the Orient from Tokyo radio quoting the resigning Japanese cabinet in a proclamation as calling on "our comrades to seek this revenge."

And before his cabinet resigned, Premier Suzuki said that "this day has become the day that never, never will be forgotten by the Japanese people." He needn't worry—it won't.

These utterances make it doubly imperative for the United States and its allies to keep a watchful eye and a strong hand on all Japan and particularly on the military and industrial.

In this connection, it is especially gratifying that Gen. MacArthur is on the job as supreme Allied commander because he knows the Japs as few others know them, through his long work in the Orient, and he is fully appreciative of the deceit and treachery that imbue the Japanese character. The Japs are not to be trusted at any time of day or night. They will bow and kneel, if they are not restrained, will stick a knife in the back of those at whom they smile and bow.

Surely we have learned enough about that to be cautious in all our further dealing with the beasty Nipponese chumps.

It All Happened In Nine Days

WE of this generation have lived through one of the momentous short periods in world history. Indeed, its portentousness may be called cataclysmic.

For, within the brief space of nine days, the global war was suddenly brought to termination and the quickened pace of the prodigious developments could not have been imagined even by the most imaginative the day before the chain of events began.

It was on August 6 that President Truman made the astounding announcement of the development of the atomic bomb and its first use on the Japanese city of Hiroshima.

August 8, Russia taking note of that world-shaking event, declared war on Japan and launched attacks on the Manchurian border. The next day President Truman warned the Japanese that more atomic bombs would be dropped if they failed to surrender.

August 10, the Japanese offered to accept the Potsdam surrender terms, provided they could keep their emperor. The next day the Allies agreed to permit Hirohito to retain his throne stripped of his sovereignty with his future dependent upon the voice of the Japanese populace.

August 14, President Truman announced the unconditional surrender of Japan.

It certainly was a period crowded with historic events, something those living today can never forget.

A Scientist Allays Atomic Bomb Fears

EDWARD STEIDLE, Pennsylvania State college scientist, says there is a limitation on atomic power because the world's supply of uranium is small. This should allay some of the fears that were generated by the atomic bombs that fell on Japan.

The entire supply of the type of uranium required for the atomic bombs is too small to furnish atomic power for more than a year or two, says Professor Steidle. While this dispels out the vision of an atomic age with the split atom supplying a new and revolutionary source of power dwarfing all previously known sources, it also dispels the gloomy vision of a world at the mercy of any mad ruler who would use the new bomb for the destruction of mankind.

If the only use that the atomic bomb ever will record is that which has just been accomplished—the ending of the war in the Pacific and the consequent saving of many lives—the $2,000,000,000 it has cost was well spent.

A new invention eliminates fog from air fields. Now if the gadget could only do the same with clouds that mess up the international situation.

The sky must appear strange to a Berlin resident these days—just plain blue and not polka-dotted with thousands of Allied planes.

One must attend a school for drivers for two months to procure a driver's license in Nanking, China.

THE REAL VALUES

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

One of the great arts in living is to learn the art of accurately appraising values. Everything that we think, that we earn, that we give, that we take in any way touches our consciousness has its own value.

These values are apt to change with the mood with time, or because of circumstances. We cannot safely tie to any material value. The values of all material possessions change continually and sometimes over night. Nothing of this nature has any permanent set value. Real values, however, never change, and in fact are beyond all appraisal.

Bonds, stocks, real estate, precious stones, art are all good possessions for those who choose to risk them, but the substantial and eternal values are the only real ones. When I buy a rare book, because of my love of this sort of collecting, I speculate as to its market value—but when I give it away for some useful purpose, the satisfaction that I gain comprises its real value.

No one can accurately appraise the value of a useful idea, or unusual knowledge, so universally does it become the property of the entire world. The real value attached to the invention of the electric light, was Edison's triumph in creating it, not its value in a commercial sense. Even that, however, cannot be estimated.

Moral and spiritual values are beyond all appraisal. The real value to a life is what is possessed by himself attaches to it. It can be almost worthless to a man or woman, or it can be so lived as to become priceless to the world. It sometimes takes centuries before even a just estimate of a human being's value is made.

The real values are those that stay by you, give you happiness and enrich you. They are the human values.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

United States Must Not Be Hoodwinked On Mikado as Grew Was, Pearson Says

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16—Having made the decision to work with and through the emperor in governing postwar Japan, our problem now is not to be fooled by him and the court "moderates" as was Ambassador Joe Grew, who up until just before Pearl Harbor kept telling the State department that the emperor didn't want war and that everything would be all right.

U. S. plans for governing Japan to date chiefly take for taking away its colonies and its raw materials for making war. But what our State and war department planners fail to realize is that many nations, such as Belgium, Portugal, and Holland may have colonies abroad without being aggressive, and that the wip-bomb of Japanese belligerency is a far deeper problem. It gets down to a democratic change in the whole outlook and philosophy of the Japanese people.

It is doubtful if they can be persuaded to give up the idea that Japanese are born to rule the world until they also give up Shintoism, the state religion which teaches just exactly that, and which revolves around the person of the emperor.

Hirohito probably is, as Mr. Grew maintains, a moderate man, much more moderate than the militarists around him. However, emperors come and go. And it is the system which they represent, a system which teaches all devout and loyal Japanese that war and conquest are an essential part of their life, which stands between us and permanent peace.

The best description of how Joe Grew was completely hoodwinked by the charming and "moderate" nobility around the emperor is told by a young U. S. Naval officer, Andrew Roth, who was promptly clapped into jail after his book was submitted to superior officers for clearance, and who still faces a charge of using government documents for his own gain. However, when and if his book, "Dilemma in Japan," is published by Little Brown & Co., it will be something every American interested in peace in the Pacific should read. I am indebted to Lt. Roth for some excellent material on this subject.

Hirohito and Big Business

Most important thing for our military governors to remember about Hirohito is that—(1) he is hog-tied and is a part of the five big business families of Japan which helped promote Japanese conquest of China and which was fat on wars; and

(2) he is the heart and soul of a state religion which preaches war.

This is what our former Ambassador to Japan, Mr. Grew, so tragically failed to grasp before Pearl Harbor and what he has continued to ignore when, as undersecretary of state, he has sold a policy of emperor retention on Secretary Byrnes and President Truman.

How charming and ingratiating the Japanese nobility can be (or else how naive our ambassador was) is indicated by Grew's own diary and by some of the telegram he sent back to the State department just six weeks before Pearl Harbor. It was obvious from Grew's reports that the imperial courtiers of Hirohito wrapped our ambassador around their little fingers.

Not only did he urge that we continue sending oil and scrap iron to Japan, but in late October 1941, after the bloodthirsty Gen. Tojo actually had become prime minister, Grew was so naive and short-sighted as to inform the State department that Tojo "would resign" if he failed to iron out U. S. Japanese troubles in the peace talks which the world later realized were a mere smoke-screen for the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Six weeks after Grew's childishly trusting report, the "moderate" emperor whom he trusted and still trusts, savagely declared a holy war against the United States.

Despite that grievous error which may have contributed to our being caught napping at Pearl Harbor, Ed Steinhilber later picked Grew to be his assistant secretary of state, and we have since accepted Grew's advice regarding retention of the emperor.

Note—Some diplomats now point out that Grew was an official of the U. S. government, making public statements favorable to the emperor during the war, it was only natural for the Japanese to accept the bait dangled before them and propose keeping the emperor. After all, Grew was the person most important post in the conduct of our foreign affairs. And the Japanese would have been foolish, in view of Grew's known views, not to have taken advantage of them.

How To Create Peaceful Japan

The chief problem facing U. S. governors of Japan is how to wean Japanese psychology away from the idea that Japan's future can only be solved through military aggression. Making this conversion with the emperor still on the throne is going to be difficult—because he has been the spearhead of the conquest theory in the past.

However, the emperor has not been such a sacrosanct institution in the past as the Grew school of thought would have us believe. Twice during the reign of Emperor Meiji, grandfather of Hirohito, there was rebellion against him, suppressed only after terrific slaughter. Once there was even an attempt to assassinate Hirohito.

And when the former Mayor of Tokyo, Yujio Ozaki, made a speech against the emperor since Pearl Harbor he was given a two-year jail sentence; but public sentiment was such that the military did not dare put him in jail. Ozaki, a strong friend of the U. S. A. and a bitter opponent of the military, was even elected to the Diet in 1942, after Pearl Harbor.

If U. S. government officials are wise they will endeavor to deflate the influence of the emperor in the reverse manner used by the feudal barons and big business leaders to carefully build him up shortly after Commodore Perry opened Japan's doors to the world.

Influence Strengthened

This column has already told how the emperor's influence at that time was relatively nil, but was strengthened partly during the campaign against the hated foreigners. Shortly after that, the first signs of democracy began to emerge in Japan. The "People's Rights Movement" started, followed by the organization of the Liberal party in 1881.

This threw the feudal aristocracy into a state of jitters and began their careful campaign to win over the Japanese people to shintoism and emperor-worship. For a time all opposition newspapers were suppressed, Japanese history books were rewritten to show that Japanese emperors had ruled in unbroken line since 600 B. C. (which was definitely not the case) and one of the most intensive propaganda campaigns in history was put across to sell the Japanese people on their emperor and the aristocratic-militarist clique which manipulated the strings behind him.

Shintoism was used on the Japanese people as Hitler used Aryan supremacy on the Nazis; though emperor-worship probably was even more potent.

Out of all this, emerged the institution of the emperor of Japan—the most powerful force for internal repression and for external aggression in all history. This is what the American military government of Japan will have to undo. They must undermine the influence of the emperor, yet, at the same time, use him to rule Japan. Under this paradoxical setup, their task obviously will not be easy.

Babson Advises Farmers To Avoid Over-Expansion

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass., Aug. 16—I have just been reading a book written for farmers by Samuel Benner who was born in Ross county, O., in 1832. It is "Benner's Prophecies" and was first published in 1875 by the Robert Clark Company of Cincinnati. His forecasts were based largely on the prices of wheat, iron and pork. He was the first business statistician to make forecasts from charts. His charts dated from 1819 until his death in 1884. A free summary of his work has been distributed by the Van Camp, Hardward and Iron Company, of Indianapolis.

Benner's Mistake

Although farmers owe much to Samuel Benner, he nevertheless made one basic mistake. In fact, if he had not, his books today would be selling as are the works of Edgingham Wilson, of London, who sold Benner's publications in England. This mistake of Mr. Benner was that he charged only prices and did not give sufficient attention to the volume. He should have charted the product of the price and the volume, as today, rather than be misled by Benner's theory.

For instance, 1,000,000,000 bushels of wheat selling at one dollar a bushel has the same potent effect as 500,000,000 bushels selling at two dollars per bushel. The same principle applies to all commodities and to business as a whole. It is the basis of the Babsonchart, a copy of which I will gladly send to any

Truth Is Viewed As Best Weapon For World Peace

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16—These are moments of excitement and celebration over the ending of the war but they cannot truly be moments of either happiness or satisfaction. For there can be no happiness, as the nation learns of the fate of the cruiser Indianapolis, announced at the last moment, grimly reminding us of all the boys in the army, navy and air forces who have given their lives and the many more who remain alive but bear the wounds of battle.

There can be no happiness either if we are honest with ourselves and recognize our own responsibility for bringing on these wars. The same superficiality, the same careless or uninformed thinking which only a few days ago wanted more blood spilled, to eliminate the Japanese emperor and carry on an invasion with huge losses, the same man-in-the-street ignorance that is content to blame it all on fascism or Nazism alone and cares nothing about the economic conditions that bring on such extremes is going to be responsible for more wars in the future unless the peoples of the world change their attitude toward truth.

Ignorance Baleful

Everybody is saying there must be no further war, that it must not happen again, and many well-meaning people really want to work toward that end. But they do not know how, because truth is so often distorted and emotionally-covered propaganda is handed them instead.

For instance, where were the thoughts of the American people back in 1931 when Japan started her march of aggression in China and took Manchuria? We had as good a piece of paper in the covenant of the League of Nations then as we have today in the charter of the United Nations. Henry L. Stimson, then secretary of state, protested. The League of Nations at first balked and did nothing. The British government pussyfooted and so did American and British opinion. Then came protests that were not backed up. Where were the thoughts of the American people in 1934 when the Japanese government notified us that there would be no further limitation of naval armament, that we couldn't have access to the mandated islands, and when they openly accused us of planning a war of aggression against them through the use of the Philippines?

Thoughts of Other Days

Where were the thoughts of the American people as threats to world peace began to appear in 1931, plainly showing us the need to build up our army, navy and air forces? Who is responsible for that unpreparedness which cost us so many lives in the Pacific?

The indifference of the American people to truth and the lazy attitude that is interested only in self-indulgence and materialistic things, the mind that scoffs at spiritual force as a means of compelling us to meet fully our responsibilities—this is in the background of our guilt.

Must Profit by Mistakes

To cry out now that we will not let wars come again would mean something if we admitted where we made our mistakes before—if we seriously studied the causes of this last war. It might be found, for instance, that the pressure of the Japanese people for an economic outlet in China and elsewhere could have been handled differently and war avoided. It might be found that better handling of the reparations problem after the last war might have educated the German people to a better sense of life and deprived the German general staff

Postwar Outlook

When I tell farmers that a big slump in farm prices will come during the next few years, they reply by pointing their increases in costs,—higher wages, higher taxes and higher everything from implements to fertilizer. In the long run, the cost of a product determines the selling price, but there is always a slump before prices are adjusted to costs. For a few years following World War II, only little attention will be given to farmers' costs, notwithstanding the following wage table:

Farm Wage Rates

Per month: with board $22.09; without board 20.18; 34.17; 52.79; 93.10

Per day: with board 1.16; 1.23; 1.86; 3.65

Per day: without board 1.42; 1.50; 2.11; 4.16

All the above means that the wise farmer will today not over-expand or buy more land. He will first get out of debt; secondly, he will buy agricultural implements and make repairs to reduce his postwar costs; thirdly, he will save money through buying government bonds and accumulating a good bank account for the troublesome years which are ahead.

SPECIAL NOTE: The above message to farmers is all the more important now that Japan has surrendered. Do not be so jubilant about getting your boys home that they will find a farm burdened with debt or a father who has failed to recognize and prepare for the slump in certain agricultural prices which is bound to follow.

The entrance of Russia into the war and the surrender of Japan do not change my opinion on the investment outlook. I am still bullish on most common stocks, with the exception of shipping, airplane and munitions. I am still bearish on the railroads and believe they will suffer with the one crop farmers.

STUFFED VEGETABLES... New way, old standbys

By CHARLOTTE ADAMS
Associated Press Food Editor

Although vegetables are one of our most varied and delectable foods boiled or steamed and served as is, some people do get tired of them that way, especially at summer's end. One way to vary the monotony (if you want to) is to stuff various vegetables with a bit of meat if you have it or with other vegetables. Here are a few examples:

Stuffed Vegetables American

6 thick slices
yellow squash
1 cup sausage
meat Melted butter or vitaminized
margarine
Salt and pepper
8 large tomatoes
2 cups cooked
pepper

Cut large squash in two inch slices. Remove seeds. Scoop out pulp and mix it with the sausage meat

Cloverdale Soft Drinks

Brush squash shell slices inside and out with melted butter or margarine and sprinkle with salt and pepper.
Stuff with sausage mixture. Place slices in shallow baking pan with small amount of water in the bottom. Choose a pan large enough to accommodate both squash and to-matos. Bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees) forty-five minutes. Meanwhile, remove slice from top of tomatoes. Scoop out pulp. Mix pulp with rice, butter or margarine, onion, and the one-half teaspoon of salt and one-quarter teaspoon pepper. Fill tomatoes. Place in pan with squash and bake thirty minutes longer.

Stuffed Cucumbers

4 cucumbers
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons butter or
margarine
1/2 pound cheddar
cheese, grated
2 tablespoons flour
Salt and pepper

Make a cream sauce of the milk, butter or margarine and flour. Cut cucumbers in half lengthwise. Scoop out cucumbers carefully, saving shells. Remove seeds and put cucumber pulp through a food chopper. Chop ham and add cucumber. Add with seasonings to cream sauce. Mix well, fill cucumber shells, top with grated cheese, and bake at 375 degrees for thirty minutes, or until the top is lightly browned.

Larger Families Is Woman's Cure For World Ills

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Bigger and better families is the remedy for world ills, as suggested by Mrs. Roman L. Springer, 40 years of age, the mother of fourteen children.

In talking of her panacea for world unrest, Mrs. Springer said that people have too much time on their hands to bum around and get into trouble. They should have more children. A big family keeps your mind occupied. And then, it's nice to have so many and not only two or three.

Navy's Champion Papa

So, until someone comes along and offers proof of fifteen children, Seaman First Class Roman L. Springer is the navy's champion father. He is serving at present as messenger in the captain's office at the air station, San Diego, California. And while he is away from his family, whose home is in Winona, Minn., Mrs. Springer manages her household with smiles and an unruffled brow and believes heartily in the doctrine of the more-the-merrier.

Mrs. Springer's recipe for a happier world and a happier home—she goes without saying—demands perfect health, high spirits and good humor. Think of the joy of seeing fourteen stockings hanging by the chimney at Christmas, even if one had to go to the five-and-ten as Santa Claus's understudy.

The expense of hiring a reliable baby-sitter will never burden this happy mother. Barbara, aged 13, minds 7-month-old Teresa. And think what a jolly outlook on life Teresa must have with a little mother like Barbara who doesn't have to pretend when she plays games, but enjoys them heartily. When the baby is tucked away in her crib, Barbara takes a hand with the supper dishes with Pat as first assistant helper.

Pound of Butter a Day

The oldest of the family is Marion, 22, who was married the other day to a sailor, Donald Puckett. She's also a WAC. Besides Marion, two others are in the service—Seaman Second Class Robert M. and Pfc. James, the latter having been in the army for two years and is now going to the Pacific.

No, names didn't give out, and Mrs. Springer may have to think up a few more before she concludes this happy family listing. The Springers have their troubles with red points like the rest of us. They eat a pound of butter a day, but as Mrs. Springer admits, things are easier now with her husband's $250 monthly allowance.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO PEOPLE WITH HAY FEVER

Science appears to have found the answer to Hay Fever, which is usually accompanied by sneezing, headache, watery eyes and sleeplessness. Dr. Harry N. Holmes of Oberlin College, (Ohio), noted that most Hay Fever victims had a deficiency of Vitamin "C". Consequently he gave 25 of his friends enough Vitamin "C" to counteract the condition, and he found that 25 out of the 25 found marked relief. This is an amazing percentage. Asthma, Hay Fever and Rose Fever sufferers will find amazing relief with our New Improved Lee's Formula Treatment, containing Vitamin "C".

No Bogey Man, He!

CHICAGO — (P) — Special police-man Frank Brown of suburban Highwood, who fills in for regular officers on vacation, drew a firm line under one entry in his record book. It related how a woman com-plained her three-year-old child re-fused to go to sleep one night, and asked him to come over and scare the youngster. It added that he de-clined.

(Registered U. S. Patent Office)

"I'd like to do something," you say "Something new and different. Something worth while. And I'm always trying—BUT SOMEHOW I SEEM TO LOSE INTEREST. If I could only find something that re-ally interested me—"

That's what you're saying. Your feelings are mixed as you say it. You feel a little proud because you are so restless. You're sure it makes you different from other people—stodgy, humdrum people, who never have such perplexities. And yet at the same time you're irritated and sorry for yourself. You envy people who have found some work they're crazy about. Lucky dogs! They have all the breaks. If only YOU could have Your Chance! If YOU could find something that would hold your interest.

Stop wishing! You'll never find an interest that will hold you—

YOU'LL HAVE TO LEARN TO HOLD AN INTEREST.

An INTEREST isn't the important thing in life. YOUR ATTITUDE TOWARD INTERESTS is the most important thing.

Thousands of interests offer opportunity. Any one of those thousands may lead you to success. That will depend not on the interest but on WHAT YOU DO WITH THE INTEREST AFTER YOU GET IT.

No interest, however alluring, is of any value to you until you've done things to it and with it. And that can't be accomplished in a brief rush of excitement. It takes time. Threshing time. And that's where you'll prove whether you're MAN MINDED OR MONKEY MINDED.

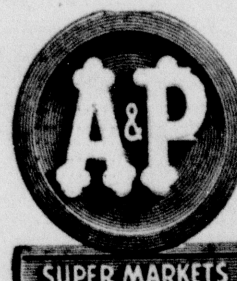

Monkeys like new interests as much as men. Monkeys can think and desire and plan—they are curious and eager and enthusiastic. Getting interested is the best thing a monkey does. And he's always willing to take a chance. BUT YOU NEVER SAW A MONKEY GET ANYWHERE WITH HIS INTERESTS. And that's because no monkey can ever hang onto an interest long enough to make it worth while. There's no GRIP in a monkey's mind. That's why he's still a monkey.

Man had a mind like that once, before he was fully a man.

Children and savages still have minds like that. Civilization is a process of learning to hang onto interests—to resist the temptation of new interests—to develop the interest you have chosen. The more civilized you are the more GROWN UP you are—the better able you are to hang on. If you continually "lose interest" it isn't the interest's fault. It's YOUR fault. IT'S A SIGN THAT YOU'RE STILL MONKEY MINDED.

AT THE ESSO SIGN

Before long, Esso regular and Esso extra will be on their way back better than ever. During the war, our country has needed astronomic quantities of powerful superb 100 octane aviation gasoline (that's why all automobile gasoline has been reduced quality).

We and our affiliates were assigned the job of becoming the world's largest producer of that magnificent 100 octane product. In doing this job, we built new plants, developed new refining methods and acquired new "know-how" that will soon pay dividends to America's car owners. Shortly all of these facilities will be at work for you producing by far the finest automobile gasoline we have ever made and that's saying a lot because before the war Esso extra was the largest selling premium gasoline from Maine to Louisiana.

It probably will be a little while before your Esso Dealer can supply you with this new gasoline. Meanwhile, we will keep you posted. Keep your eyes peeled for further information regarding this extraordinarily fine new motor fuel.
